Social contract shaves $289,000 from local municipal revenues

by Russ Duhaime

Municipal governments will not be spared in the province's efforts to bridle the deficit.

Not by a long shot.

As a matter of fact, Haliburton County has now learned it will have about $67,000 less to work with once the Ontario government settles its highly unpopular social contract.

This lost revenue is over and above the $40,000 the county has already lost through reduced grants and the $8,000 more it will be paying in taxes on sand and gravel for the roads department.

The province is planning to cut $275-million out of municipal revenues as part of the social contract. Initially, the savings were supposed to come from voluntary cutbacks on behalf of employees. However, when that plan fell through, the province decided to leave it up to individual municipalities to decide where the cuts will come from.

Municipalities received notice last week of just how deeply the province plans to cut into their revenues. The total lost revenue of all municipalities in this county amounts to almost $289,000.

County Warden Chris Hodgson says his council will have to give some very serious consideration to the options available for making up this lost revenue. He says there are four ways of dealing with the situation, and none are very popular.

Ernie Hills takes assignment as county clerk

Snowdon clerk chosen to fill temporary post with the county

Snowdon Township's clerk-treasurer has been chosen to fill a temporary assignment as the county clerk.

Ernie Hills will be working for two days each week as the county clerk when Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight becomes the administrator of Hyland Crest next month.

Hills will also continue to work as the clerk of Snowdon Township, which he agrees will be a challenge. However, he said he's fortunate to have a very capable assistant clerk in Doug Brohm. "Doug is very competent and he'll be able to handle things here".

The assignment with the county is a temporary measure while county council redefines the role of the county clerk position. County Warden Chris Hodgson said the various department heads will also be taking on more responsibilities while the changes are being implemented.

Lieutenant-Colonel H.G. Clarke reviewed the 1129 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment last Sunday at the eighth annual inspection. Members of the corps, one of the best in the province, stand at attention as they wait to be appraised. The inspection took place last Sunday at Camp Brannigan where members of the Minden and Haliburton Legions presented awards to the outstanding cadets.

Valerie Patterson and Bryn Gray were two of 20 members of the grade eight drama club at Archie Stouffer Elementary School who recently presented their production of Murder at the Sandcliffe Hotel. Under the direction of teacher Dale McConnell, the budding actors did an excellent job in their interpretation of the comedy/murder mystery.

Taxi!

Cab company has new owner

New life is being pumped into the taxi business in Minden.

On Saturday, Gary Bloor of Minden purchased the assets of Minden Taxi and is ready to provide reliable transportation to customers throughout the area.

Bloor says the opportunity to purchase the assets came about six weeks ago. He researched the business and its potential and decided there was a demand for a well-equipped and coordinated taxi service.

"I want clean dependable cars for the customers," says Bloor, "and friendly courteous drivers are a must."

Bloor says he has laid out a set of rules by which his drivers must abide. "People are paying for a service and should expect safe, clean drivers and safe dependable vehicles." He promises his drivers will present themselves in a professional fashion.

"One thing I will tell you is that I want my drivers trained in first aid and CPR," he says. With the large number of seniors and visitors to this area and the distance to medical aid, Bloor said it is important for drivers to have these skills. "I want my drivers to be able to help people," he says. "Driving is a profession."

Bloor says he is excited about this venture because he feels there is a real need in the community. He says the seniors would feel better, knowing they are in the care of dependable drivers and vehicles.

Bloor will be operating fully insured vehicles 24 hours a day and he hopes to expand his service in the future beyond the current two cars.

Bound for Denmark

Meaghan Obee has few worries about her year-long exchange

by Russ Duhaime

Meaghan Obee has planned to participate in a Rotary exchange since she was 10 years old and her family was hosting a youth from another country. And now in less than month the 16-year-old Minden girl will be off to spend a year in Denmark.

Is she nervous about leaving the comfort of her home and friends to spend a year in an unfamiliar land? Not at all.

"I'm nervous about the language, but not about leaving," she says. "I'm pretty independent. I've been thinking about this day for a long time -- six years -- so it's not really a big shock."

Although life in Denmark will be a brand new experience for Meaghan, she has a very good idea of what to expect in terms of the exchange experience. Her brother, Hunter, went on a Rotary exchange trip to Belgium. In addition, her parents, Bill and Penny, have hosted six or seven students from various countries at their home on South Water Street.

Denmark was not Meaghan's first choice of countries to visit. Nor was it her second, or even ninth. Like her brother, Meaghan had hoped to spend her year in Belgium, where she would have the opportunity to polish her French language skills. Although she is already reasonably fluent in French, Meaghan had hoped to improve her fluency through immersion in a French speaking culture.

Instead, she will be learning

Denmark wasn't her first choice of countries to visit, but Meaghan Obee is excited about the prospect of spending the next 12 months in the midst of a different culture.

Danish, a language that has little practical application outside of Denmark. "I'm going to learn this great language and then never get to use it," she laughs.

Even though it's a far cry from her first choice, Meaghan is not disappointed about spending her year in Denmark. She's excited about leaving and is anxious to "immerse myself in another life."

Except for brushing up on her geography, Meaghan hasn't done a great deal of reading about the country. "I will read a bit," she says, but she does not want to get any preconceptions of the country or its culture. She says all books are influenced by the perception of their writers. "I'd rather acquire my own perceptions," she says.

Barking by-law has no bite

*Dysart Council plans to revamp noise
bylaw to silence
howling hounds*

by Andy Holloway

Dysart council is looking for ways to add some bite to its noise bylaw after a resident came forward with a tape recording of her neighbor's loud pets.

Nancy Prentice of Eagle Lake brought the tape to council to demonstrate that her complaints about the dogs are true and asked that something be done about it. She said that she has tried calling police, bylaw officers and talking with the neighbors, but nothing has been done so far. The lack of action has forced the Prentice's to put their dream home up for sale.

"It's bad when you have four houses in front of yours that you're afraid of going outside and when you go to bed you don't know what you will wake up to. We don't know where else to turn."

The municipality had already sent a letter stating there was a noise bylaw to Prentice's neighbors because of complaints she made earlier. However, Prentice said the dogs continue to bark for long periods of time and she has put her house up for sale unwillingly. Councillor Brian Watts said there have been complaints about barking dogs for many years in the county because there are a lot of hunters with hounds.

"It's a problem in this county because of the number of hounds. It's not just a problem there, we have it in Guilford as well."

Councillor Lloyd Leadbeatler said the current bylaw is too broad to be enforced and needs toughening up. If Dysart's bylaw officer did lay a charge the court would overturn it, said clerk Donna McCallum. "It's so general that we could go to court, but it would probably fail."

Prentice said other neighbors have complaints; but she is the only one to come forward so far. She added that there have been rumours that the pets would be poisoned if the noise continues, but that is not the solution.

"It's not the animal's fault. If the owners can't look after them properly then they shouldn't have them."

Councillors were given a copy of a more effective bylaw that McCallum obtained from the city. The bylaw specifically states that barking, whining and whimpering by pets is cause for a charge to be laid.

County hard pressed by social contract

One option is to carry on with business as usual and pass the financial burden on to the local taxpayers. However, Hodgson says county tax hikes are not acceptable.

Another option now being made available to municipal governments is to borrow the money they need to operate. Until now, deficit financing has been taboo for municipal governments, and it's something that Hodgson wants no part of. Hodgson says he does not want to see Haliburton County biting into the same problems the province is now struggling to get out of.

Yet another option is to cut the county's services, which would be a difficult pill for county residents to swallow. The county's primary services include welfare, maintenance of county roads, administration of Hyland Crest, land use planning, economic development and waste management. Choosing which of these services should go on the chopping block would be a highly unpopular decision.

The final option is to find a more efficient way of providing the current services, a task the county is already endeavoring to accomplish. An efficiency study of the county's operations is now nearing completion, and it is expected that few significant savings will result without a major overhaul of the present system of government.

One recommendation that is expected to come from this study is for the creation of a single-tier government to serve the entire county. This would likely mean the amalgamation of the county's 10 municipal councils into one central governing body. The main benefits would come from the elimination of duplication of services. The main drawback would be the elimination of certain jobs.

The social contract is not expected to be finalized until this August, at which point Hodgson says the county will have a better idea of what is involved.

Guiding Cords extended to 11 local girls

Three Pathfinders earn top honour

by Andy Holloway

Three Minden Pathfinders have received the highest honour in Canada, the Canada Cord.

Aimee Mansfield, Meaghan Obee and Amanda Stephenson of the 1st Minden Pathfinders all received the Cord at a ceremony last Tuesday at the Minden Legion Hall.

The local Pathfinders group has been around for just two years, but is growing rapidly. Last year, there were just four Pathfinders while this year there were 13.

That number should grow next year as just the three Canada Cord recipients of the Pathfinders are leaving the program while seven girls from the 1st Minden Girl Guides moved up the ladder.

The Guides were presented with the all round cord signifying that they have completed the guide program. All seven were then welcomed by the Pathfinders to their group. Kathleen Barnes, Amy Brandon, Landa Crego, Shirleen DeHaan, Erin Kernohan, Naomi Stephenson-Aggett and Sarah Tusch were the Guides moving up.

All Guides and Pathfinders received badges for the work they accomplished last year. Just prior to presenting some of the badges to the Guides Minden Reeve Bern Berry praised them for their efforts during the year.

"On behalf of the community I thank you for the work you have done for the community," said Berry.

Also at the ceremony were Woodland Divisions Commissioner Jane Allan and Lindsay District Commissioner Alice Dana.

North meets west at new store

With country music rising to the top of the music charts, two entrepreneurs have now opened a new store in Minden, selling a wide variety of men's, women's and children's western apparel.

France Rochet and Dale Merrill opened Nashville North three weeks ago at the front of Gambell's Antiques on the north side of Minden's Main Street bridge.

The popularity of western music and clothing is much more than a flash in the pan, says Merrill. He and Rochat believe that time will prove the country theme will be as lasting as blue jeans and Nashville North will be providing customers with related fashion needs.

In addition to the comfortable and colourful clothing, Nashville North also deals in country style crafts, designer bags, belts, buckles, boots and hats. They also stock a variety of country tapes and CDs.

Rochat is no newcomer to the clothing industry. She has been involved in the retail clothing business for more than 13 years in St. Catharines and California. She and Merrill plan to aggressively market their stock through the store, and by participating in various shows and events. They will be participating in a major show in St. Catharines and will also be active in Minden's Canada Day festivities with a fashion show and a demonstration of line dancing.

Rochat and Merrill fashion some Nashville North country clothing.

Show us some innovation

In its efforts to correct decades of over-spending, it seems the provincial government is pulling out all the stops.

Municipalities, regions counties and school boards, which are being told to absorb extreme cutbacks in their revenues from the province, are likely to find themselves in the same leaky boat. Provincial employees in all ministries are being offered wage freezes or rollbacks.

Virtually everyone whose employment is even remotely linked to provincial spending is affected -- everyone, that is, except the MPPs themselves.

Welland-Thorold MPP Peter Kormos last week suggested the pension plan for MPPs should be revised, but his recommendation was flatly rejected by fellow members, most of whom are earning salaries higher than anything they could have imagined in their wildest dreams.

How, then, can they expect a warm reception to their call for wage rollbacks if they are unwilling to share in the pain?

Another notable exception to the provincial cuts is in the department of French language services. We have yet to hear any mention of plans to chop back the spending on the promotion of the great Ontario bilingualism myth.

It appears this government is willing to put important services like roads, environment, and natural resources at risk, but is unwilling to tamper with a program that has no real benefits in most parts of this province.

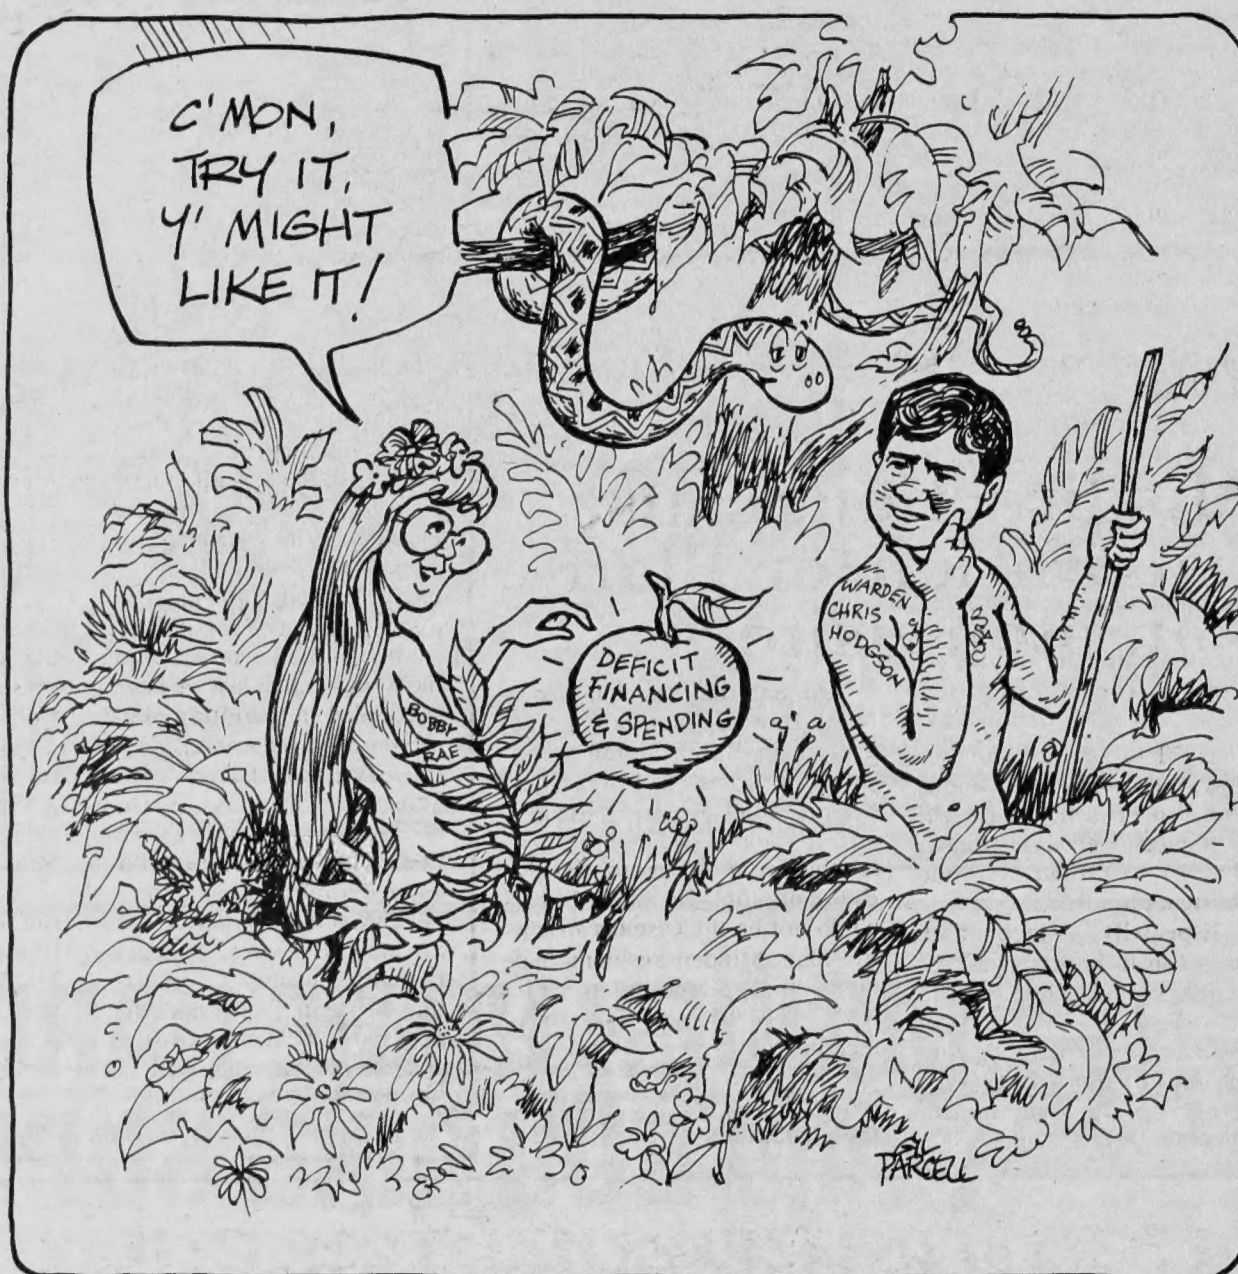

The provincial government keeps telling us to be innovative about our approach to spending. Lead by example, we say. Show us some innovative thought. Show us some leadership by practising what you preach.

Clarification

It has been brought to our attention that a letter published in last week's paper was not written by Annie Kelly of Minden. Neither was it written by the Kellys of South Lake.

We apologize for the inconvenience caused by the lack of a clear identification of the writer.

In order to avoid mistaken identity, The Times requires that all letters be accompanied by a full name, address, telephone number and the signature of the writer.

Dr. Dawson responds to letter

Editor:

I write this response in strong protest to a letter to the editor published June 14 in The Times, which attacked me both professionally and personally. Your publishing of the letter represents inaccurate and irresponsible journalism for the following reasons:

(1) The letter was simply signed, "Mrs. Kelly". The first name was omitted. This letter is worse than being anonymous because two of my patients, both having the last name "Kelly" became falsely implicated. On page 9 in the 'Opinion' section, your policy is clearly stated concerning acceptability of letters to the editor. You state, "The Times welcomes signed letters to the editor." A signature is only valid if the first and second names are included, such that a person can be identified. Your policy further states, "All letters must bear the handwritten signature of the writer and must include the address and phone number for verification purposes." This policy was obviously abandoned. There was simply no full signature, no address, no phone number and certainly no verification. No one from The Times ever spoke to Mrs. Kelly. The letter was apparently dropped off in The Times mailbox with no verification of its authenticity.

(2) Your headline (not the writer's), states "Wanted: Community doctor who cares", in bold print. This is a totally unacceptable attack on my personal integrity. I feel I am a caring and compassionate physician and take great exception to your false and demeaning implication.

(3) As the letter was a response to the article written about me in the Toronto Star on June 9, Mrs. Kelly's letter should more appropriately have been sent to the Toronto Star, not the Minden Times. Perhaps a copy of her letter was sent to the Toronto Star--if so, it was obviously deemed inappropriate for publication.

I'd like to take this opportunity to address concerns raised in the letter. She complains, "patients have to wait two hours to see him", and I don't have time for them. The reason I often get behind is because I do, in fact, give my patients the necessary amount of time. Usually we don't know in advance what the patient's problem is going to be, its complexity, or the number of problems. It's unfortunate that it often means getting behind, but the alternative is to look at your watch, cut the patient off and tell

The Times welcomes signed letters to the editor on subjects of interest to our readers. Short letters are most likely to be chosen for publication, but the use of any material is at the discretion of the editor. The editor reserves the right to edit letters to meet space requirements, for clarity or to avoid obscenity, libel or invasion of privacy.

Upon request, names may be withheld, but only very rarely and for compelling reasons. Letters published do not necessarily reflect the editorial policies or beliefs of this newspaper. All letters must bear the handwritten signature of the writer and include the address and phone number for verification purposes.

Letter not written by this Mrs. Kelly

Editor:

I understood you do not publish unsigned letters. If the name is Kelly, Smith, Brown, you should have a first name or initial.

My name is "Mrs. Kelly" and I am being pestered to death by friends and acquaintances who are sure I wrote the nasty letter about Dr. Steve Dawson. I did not.

I would appreciate it if you would clear this up. As it stands now, you have published an anonymous letter.

If people cannot properly identify themselves, they should not hide behind someone with the same name.

Thank you for your attention.

Misdirections cause frustration for Blairhampton visitors

Editor:

I fail to see how anyone born and raised in Minden township does not know the difference between Bethel Church Road and Blairhampton Road.

Especially, since both roads run in an east-west direction. Bethel Church Road is concession 5, and most of Blairhampton Road is in concession 8. I don't know why anyone would want to call them by the same name.

On Saturday, a chap from North Bay was sent looking for a place in Blairhampton as he was told it was on this (Bethel Church) road. He was quite annoyed when I told him he had another four miles to get to Blairhampton. He argued this could not be the case because a life-long Minden resident had given him directions to this road. The informer is also a merchant in Minden.

Bruce Nesbitt,
Blairhampton

Quality of medical care must always remain first them their time's up. In my ten years of practise, I have never done this once. Quality of medical care must always remain as the first and foremost concern, second to none.

I am deeply offended by the comment of the writer stating she wants a physician "...that cares about us and our community." I do care about the community. I've fought very hard, along with others, to keep Minden Hospital and maintain its high standards of care. I care deeply about my medical practice and practise a conscientious level of care.

I would like to reassure the writer that at last we have succeeded in recruiting physicians who plan on staying. Dr. Marc Chayer, Dr. Tennessee Katsuta and Dr. Shabaz Warsi have all agreed to stay in the community for a long term basis.

The comment that I run my medical centres, "...like a franchise business" is insulting. Medicine is an honourable and dedicated profession and cannot be compared to selling donuts and hamburgers. Her comments undermine the intent of my original article in the Toronto Star. In that article I expressed my concerns that the proposed changes by the Ministry of Health would make it exceedingly difficult to recruit and retain physicians in small towns in Ontario such as Minden, where they are desperately needed. My other clinics in Cobocok, Bracebridge, Marmora and soon to be established in Orillia and Dorset allow many thousands of patients local accessibility to necessary health care that otherwise might not be possible in these areas that are presently under-served. Considerable time is spent managing these clinics to ensure quality control and I regret that it means that I'm unable to practise full time in Minden.

Although unfortunately I can therefore only practise medicine part time in Minden, I refuse to compromise my standards. My approach remains thorough and compassionate.

Contrary to the writer's comments, I care deeply about my patients. After eight years in Minden now, my patients have become my friends and many of them are like family to me. The writer's allegation that I don't care about my patients is, in my opinion, slanderous and libellous and demeans my integrity as both a physician and a person.

Publishing this malicious letter with no clear identification of the writer, no verification of its authenticity, and with its editorialized headline, represents an act of irresponsible journalism on the part of The Times. I believe that this was a drop in their otherwise good professional standards. I hope that as a result of this incident, more care and caution will be taken in choosing letters appropriate for publication, so that in the future, the personal integrity of other innocent people will not be attacked.

Deathstar could be end of civilization

Imagine what it would be like if TV were actually good. It would be the end of everything we know.

— Marvin Minsky

An American media executive with the unfortunate handle of Newton Minow Esquire once defined North American television as "a vast wasteland."

Mister Minow may have been moniker-challenged, but philosophically he was bang on the money.

If you doubt it, go to the only one-eyed piece of furniture in the corner of your living room on any weekday afternoon and turn it on.

You will be rewarded with badly acted soap operas, huffing and puffing airheads in spandex workout suits and a plethora of talk shows hosted by mike-toting hosts examining the problems of Transvestite Bank Tellers from Broken Homes and Their Pets.

Or you could flip up the dial until you hit the Weather Channel.

The Weather Channel. Think about it for a moment. Do you think Newton Minow would ever have believed that some day television would feature a channel devoted to nothing but weather reports 24 hours a day?

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

What's really scary is that the Weather Channel is often the best thing on the box.

Not counting the Shopping Channel, of course. Now there's a magnificent milestone in broadcasting history - a channel that features still photographs of Elvis paintings, chia plants and phoney-looking necklaces made of cubic zirconium.

And they're all for sale.

That's not all. The National Cable Association down in the United States is offering a whole raft of new video services next year - including a channel called ATV. That stands for Advertising Television. It features an endless reel of five to ten-minute commercials, one after another.

Twenty-four hours a day.

Who watches this crap?

Well, it's hard to say exactly just who the hard core TV addicts are out there, being mesmerized by the tube, but we know a few things about that gaping maw called the Television Audience.

We know for instance, that you don't want to get them riled. Last summer a cable TV company in Columbia, South Carolina stationed a TV camera on a tropical fish tank and broadcast the resulting 'drama' on an otherwise empty channel. When they finally replaced the static aquarium shot with some actual network programming, outraged viewers lit up the cable TV telephone switchboard, angrily demanding the return of the fish tank.

They won. The company now broadcasts the aquarium on another channel non-stop, from nine in the morning to midnight.

And it looks like television is poised to take an even bigger bite out of our time. What's the title of that old Springsteen song - "57 Channels and Nothing's On"?

Make it 160 channels.

Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to introduce you to Deathstar. It's the slang name for a Los Angeles-based news service and entertainment package that will soon be targeting all North American televisions with a 160 channels.

You know that humongous satellite dish your uncle shelled out a couple of grand for last year? Tell him he now owns one of the world's biggest birdbaths. Deathstar offers its clients a rooftop dish no bigger than a large pizza.

Ann Landers said it best: "Television has proved that people will look at anything rather than each other."

Trimming the fat should start at the top

Government in relatively stable countries like Canada is an unwieldy beast. Slow and ponderous in a changing world, its unwillingness to move is a sign of the comfort it has achieved. No one wants reform; only static movements are permitted.

Most MPs and MPPs have little power to change the way their governments behave. Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville said as much when he decided to sit as an independent in the provincial legislature. MP Bill Scott, while apparently a very nice guy, has done little over his 27 years in office except vote for his party's policies and vote against anybody else - like so many others, a classic backbencher.

So why do we need them at all?

If the federal government is controlled by an elite power corps consisting of maybe 15 people who decide in what direction the party is heading, why should we pay the other 250 MPs to sit as head noddors.

Governments love to cut expenses, but are loath to actually cut off some of their own. After all, that fat has been creeping up on them like the excess baggage accumulating on baby boomers for years. Indeed, politicians seem to revel in the fact they owe and are owed so many favours.

"That's just more of me to love," they croon as one.

The federal government generally decides issues of national interest. Over the years, it has grown gradually weaker while the provinces have demanded more powers. We are now in a situation where Quebec holds the balance of power in Canada. Win the Quebec vote and win Canada. For that support, excessive patronage jobs and contracts are forked over to Quebec-based firms when other areas

Rantin' n' Ravin'

by Andy Holloway

are more worthy.

If the entire federal system consisted of fewer members would it not make sense that there would be fewer favours owed? Instead of having 130 members from Quebec and Ontario how about four each, British Columbia could have three while Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia could have two. Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and the Territories get one for a total of 23 MPs.

Would this system radically change what policies are taken - no. Would it save millions of dollars - yes.

There are those who will suggest that Bill Scott does a lot for the community, and there is no arguing that he is an excellent goodwill ambassador willing to show up at events and greet the public. But what exactly has he done to help this specific area. Have any new jobs been created directly by his actions or has any policy, devised by Scott, been implemented without any changes.

For that matter, what exactly has the MP for Hastings done or Orillia or Barrie South. The bitter answer is: wave a hand here and there, say a few things and leave with the best pension system in Canada.

Debates and question periods are little more than fodder for the media to grab a few juicy quotes and headlines. Most of the key ministers don't even bother showing up, preferring to make policy behind the green door.

This is not a new system. The United States has a similar set-up with its state senators -- there are 100 senators and 50 states. However, because there is a wider range of diversity within each province than there is in a state, it makes sense that the larger and more populated areas have more representation.

With a sense of our British parliamentary system combined with a bit of practicality, Canada could cut the fat and show the way, rather than waving weakly in the wind.

Hills sees posting as a challenge

mented.

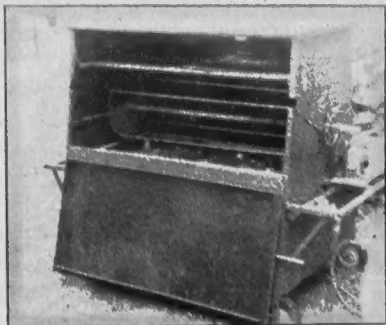

"I look at this as a challenge," said Hills. "It's an interim step while the politicians try to address the changes and challenges ahead." He said the county and municipalities are facing serious problems, particularly in terms of finances.

The county and its 10 municipalities received word last week that their revenues from the province are being chopped by almost $289,000.

Hills has served as Snowdon's clerk since the fall of 1988, when Geoff Wynn retired. He has been the chairman of the county's Clerk-Treasurers' Association since 1989. He is certified by the Association of Municipal Clerk Treasurers of Ontario and has an additional certificate in municipal law from that association.

Bass: A worthy opponent for any angler

Get ready anglers; season opens for bass fishing this Saturday

by Jerry Grozelle

Whether its the bulldogging tactics of the largemouth or the aerial acrobatics of the smallmouth, it's no wonder so many anglers are hooked on bass fishing.

On June 26, many anglers will be switching their attention from trout and walleyes to concentrate on bass.

Within a half-hour drive of Minden are scores (maybe hundreds) of lakes ranging in size from potholes to several miles long. Most of them harbour either largemouth or smallmouth bass. Many have both species.

In general terms, look for largemouth in shallower, weedy areas such as bays. Smallmouth prefer rocky shoals with drop-offs to deeper water. There are places where the range of both species overlap. Largemouth bass can tolerate warmer water than their smallmouth cousins.

One of the beauties of bass fishing is the fact that they will take almost any offering from anglers.

Live bait, including grasshoppers, frogs, crayfish, minnows, leeches and worms, are all productive baits used alone or in combination with artificials such as jigs or spoons.

Many anglers prefer crankbaits, which are usually imitations of minnows, crayfish or other natural bait. Some crankbaits have absolutely no resemblance to anything that has ever swum, hopped, walked or even flown over the water, but they still catch fish. The trick with crankbaits is to match the lure to the water depth.

If the fish are in deeper water, as smallmouth bass often are, a deep diving lure is more likely to penetrate to the fish's strike zone. There are deep-diving

A nice pair

baits that will actually dive to 15 feet or more on an average cast.

The actual depth any lure can achieve depends on the diameter of the line you use. A lure cast from shore using six pound test will not only go farther than the same lure cast with the same rod and reel combination, but it will also go deeper than it would using the same brand of line in 12 pound test.

Generally, the bigger the lip on a crankbait, the deeper it will go.

One point to remember though: if you switch to lighter line, be sure to adjust the drag on your reel accordingly. Many a lunker has been lost because the angler's drag was set too tightly for the line being used.

Plastic worms have probably accounted for more bass caught in the United States over the last 10 or 15 years than any other bait. Anglers in Canada are quick to pick up on any tactic that works and it's obvious that we're using them more and more by the variety of sizes, colours and shapes available in almost every tackle store.

One of the best ways to rig a plastic worm is to "Texas rig" it. Basically, you thread a bullet sinker onto your line, tie on a long shanked hook (there are special worm hooks available). Insert the point of the hook into the middle of the front of the worm's head and pull the point out about half an inch back. Draw the hook all the way back until the eye is touching the front part of the worm. Turn it around and sink the point into the body of the worm until it is past the barb, but not protruding from the other side. You can either peg the bullet sinker tight to the eye of the hook by pushing the point of a toothpick in beside the line and breaking it off or you can let the sinker slide freely. If you don't like the idea of the sinker sliding very far up the line, tie on a barrel swivel and add a couple of feet of line with the Texas rigged worm below it. The sinker will stop at the swivel and if a fish picks up the bait there will be less of a dead weight that could cause it to spit it out before you get a chance to set the hook.

The Texas rigged plastic worm is more suited to largemouth fishing. It is virtually weedless and can be pulled through thick vegetation where the lunkers hang out. It can also be effective on smallies too, especially around deeper weedbeds.

Spinner baits are also proven bass catchers. They are those combinations of a jig and some sort of twister tail and a spinner blade positioned above it on a V-shaped wire.

The spinner bait is great for fishing the edges of weedbeds, pockets in weeds and even in deeper water. They can be allowed to sink into the depths or "burned" along the surface like a buzz bait.

Spinner baits aren't completely weedless, but they don't pick up vegetation like crankbaits or spoons with exposed treble hooks do.

The most spectacular method of catching bass is with surface baits. The early morning hours or just before dark, when the surface of the lake is mirror-smooth is tailor made for fishing surface baits.

Haliburton turned on high

Haliburton Westside Jug City won its second game of the Muskoka District Soccer League season when Orillia failed to show up to the game last Sunday.

The win moved Haliburton out of last place completely and into a tie for seventh place with five other teams, all with four points. Orillia brings up the rear with three points.

Haliburton officially wins the game 1-0. Two weeks ago Haliburton won its first game of the year.

In other games last Sunday, the Midland North Stars lost their first game and now only the Hunstville Strikers are undefeated and untied.

Motor boat safety law resurfaces

A provincial bill requiring motor boat operators to have safety training has once again been resurfaced by Simcoe East MPP Allan McLean, but don't hold your breath expecting it to pass.

This is the fourth attempt by McLean to get some form of mandatory safety training course in place. The previous three times, his bills died before they were voted on in the legislature largely because there was opposition from recreational boaters about the licensing aspect. This newest effort, which has been introduced and read a first time on June 2, no longer asks that boaters be licensed.

The proposed law comes after a coroner's jury in Midland recommended such a law be in place after the 1991 death of two Toronto residents in the Trent-Severn system.

Over 200 people die annually on Ontario's waterways in boating accidents. There are about one million boat owners in the province. Currently, there are no laws concerning

Key to bass fishing is versatility

Several tackle companies have developed lures strictly for surface fishing. A few that most anglers will recognize are the Jitterbug, Hula Popper and Dying Flutter. They chug, splash and churn up the surface with propellers. They are designed to stir up a commotion that, at times, causes fish to strike with heart-stopping ferocity.

The strategy with these baits is to try to wait a couple of seconds after the strike to set the hook. That's easier said than done when you can actually see the fish smash the lure on top of the water. More often than not, the fish will miss the lure on the first pass and the enthusiastic angler yanks the bait out of the fish's strike zone when he sets the hook in thin air. Giving the fish two seconds before setting the hook is much easier said than done. It takes a lot of will-power not to rear back in an attempt to drive the hooks home when you see a fish break the surface right where your lure was.

Any lure that floats can be used as a surface bait.

Floating crankbaits can be very effective when used on the surface. Cast the lure near the edge of some form of structure (weeds, logs, rocks) and allow it to sit there until the rings from the splash-down dissipate (15 to 20 seconds isn't too long). Reel in the slack line and give the rod tip a little twitch, just enough to make the lure bounce in the water. Be prepared. The water is apt to erupt like a volcano and a missed strike may toss the lure three feet in the air.

This tactic once caught me two largemouth bass at once. I cast a jointed floating Rapala to the edge of a patch of lily pads. It was quickly engulfed, but the ensuing battle felt more like I was hauling in a mass of weeds. The two fish, each weighing about a pound, fought against each other so it was like reeling in an old boot.

Any angler who has fished bass for very long will know that a tactic that could have filled the boat with fish yesterday might not provoke a passing interest today.

Weather conditions, atmospheric pressure, the phase of the moon or any combination of a thousand other reasons can cause fish to come down with a case of lockjaw, depending on who you talk to.

If you find that yesterday's tactics are failing miserably today you may have to fish harder, or you may have to fish differently.

The tactics explained above have been successful in the past and they will produce good results in the future. But there are many other ways that will catch fish when none of the above seem to be working.

The key is to be versatile. If one method isn't working, try something else. If you still don't get results, try a different area, at a different depth. The fish are there somewhere and they have to eat sometime.

Don't be afraid to try something a little unorthodox. Who knows, you might stumble upon a technique that the fish can't resist. You'd make a fortune doing the lecture circuit.

If you are intending to catch some fish for the pan, that's fine. But, remember, once a fish has been put on a stringer it is a keeper. Fish that have been towed around on a stringer may swim away when they are released but their chances of survival after such stress is minimal at best.

The most successful method of catch-and-release is to make the decision whether or not it is going in the pan as soon as it is caught. If you don't plan on a fish fry, release the fish with as little handling as possible.

A live well is much less stressful on fish than a stringer. If you don't catch enough for a meal, the fish you have caught can easily be released.

Senior curlers gear down for golf tourney

by Aileen Blears

What is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays:
—Lowell

June certainly lived up to the image presented above when 18 foursomes brought Beaverbrook Golf Club to its knees last Tuesday (well, some of them did...probably). No matter, everyone had an enjoyable round of golf.

These were all senior people, members of Minden Seniors Curling Club. It should be noted that the first group to tee off had seen a total of 328 birthdays which, if public school memory serves, is an average of 82.

The blackflies must have taken the pledge as there was little evidence of blood trickling down foreheads and cheeks...although there was some slapping going on which was accompanied by appropriate words.

It was hard to outdo the morning's activities, but dinner and dancing at Deer Lodge managed a tie. Ebbie Bishop, who always does a great job, was master of ceremonies. Before presenting the awards and prizes, he kept the diners amused with his stories and jokes (some unprintable).

Even after nine holes of golf, most stayed for dancing to everything from the waltz to the achy-breaky, and some innovations as yet, unnamed.

The Gil and Mary Scott Golf Trophy was won by the team of Don Drewell with a score of 37. Don had with him, John Warren, Merle Codlin and Phil Graham. Ralph Palmer came second with 38. Jean Heckel, Bob Wiltshire and Marion Thomas helped Ralph with his win. Captain Russ Fair with Gerry Palmer, George Hewitt and Jean Jackson took third place with 39.

Earl McDonald and Ed Bulger tied for the longest drive for men, and Merle Codlin won for the ladies. Closest to the hole for men was Bill Trapp and Gwen Cox was the ladies winner.

Beaverbrook Golf Club kindly donated three gifts to be given as prizes;

these were won by Rene Codlin, Tom Hurtt and Jack Gregory.

The next golfing day will be held September 8 at Blairhampton Golf Club.

Have a great summer.

Deer licences available

Deer licences are now available along with applications for the antlerless deer validation tag draw.

The deadline for the selective harvest draw is August 3. The draw is designed to ensure that only a limited number of deer are killed in each region. The ceiling is established by Ministry of Natural Resources' biologists based on current information on the deer population as well as future projections.

To receive a deer hunting license and to enter the draw you must have a valid Outdoors Card (hunting version). The card costs $6 and is being issued within three weeks of the application being received. So far, almost 750,000 cards have been issued this year.

Further information on deer licences can be obtained by calling 416-324-2225 as well as MNR district offices (in Minden call 286-1521).

Lawn bowlers have tourney in Minden

We were pleased to have Ross Farr, the District 11 Coordinator for the Ontario Senior Games, participate in the Haliburton Lawn Bowling Games played last Monday and Tuesday.

Congratulations to all the winners.

First Timberfest bodes well for event's future

by Andy Holloway

Minden's first Timbersport Festival has to be considered a resounding success.

Under brilliantly sunny skies, the competitors started chopping, sawing, throwing and climbing at 10 a.m. and continued right through to a tea boil challenge around 4 p.m. Organizers estimated over 1,000 people watched at least part of the event.

Local competitors drew the largest applause from the highly partisan audience, but there were cheers for the rest, many of whom came from far away to compete. There was one man from New Zealand, two from France and a few from New York State. The out-of-towners may not have gotten all the applause, but they did go away with most of the hardware and a fair amount of cash.

The Business Improvement Area and Minden council were the two main sponsors of the event, but several businesses and service groups climbed aboard to offer prize money including The Lions Club, Stihl and Northshore Lawn and Garden, Legion Branch 636, Canadian Handcrafted Homebuilders Supply, Rockcliffe Tavern, Minden Rent-All and the Rotary Club.

Off the main street, there were also plenty of timber related activities and events. In front of the Municipal Office on Milne Street there were a number of displays under large blue and white tents. The Ministry of Natural Resources had a 'guess the amount of firewood contest' (won by Pat Stivers, a cottager on 12 Mile Lake, whose guess of 0.520 cords was just off the actual total of 0.525 cords) and a safety demonstration was given by Godfrey Tyler of Donald.

However, these displays could have been put on the main street as the timber games only used up a third of the blocked off area of the road. Perhaps, next year organizers could put the whole event together and create more of a festival atmosphere.

Minden councillor Jean Anthon said the displays could be expanded on next year as they were quite popular this time.

"I think it's a really great event and I enjoyed it more than I expected to. I'd like to see additional opportunities at the tents for more of the historical aspect as it was very popular and if we can expand on it that would be great."

Overall, Anthon said she was impressed with the event and will push for its return.

"I didn't hear anybody who didn't think it was an exciting kind of day."

Dysart to replace some beach privies

by Andy Holloway

The following items were briefly discussed at Dysart council last Monday.

A smelly problem

Beach goers on Haliburton Lake and Sandy Cove should find it a more pleasant place to be this summer as Dysart is installing better toilets. Dave Freeman of the Haliburton Lake Cottager's Association said Reeve Chris Hodgson was appalled at the poor condition of the two outhouses on the beach last summer during the annual regatta. Freeman agreed the smell was pretty bad and asked council for advice. After a bit of haggling, councillors agreed to set up two outhouses with a proper concrete storage tank which will make conditions more sanitary and cut down on the smell. Freeman said the association would buy one $600 outhouse if council bought the other and the storage tank, at a cost of about $1,500. Haliburton Lake's beach is used extensively during the summer with a weekly T-ball night, Red Cross swimming program and three major events including the regatta.

Councillor Gerry Walker said the problem is not specific to Haliburton Lake, while councillor Brian Watts said a survey should be done of all beaches to see how many need better outhouses. In the end, however, only Sandy Cove will get an outhouse this year because the cost is high.

Chips

One request for a chip wagon location was approved by councillors and one was turned down. John Cowling asked to set up a chip shop by the laundromat in Haliburton. The site conforms with Dysart's bylaws stating that it be 500 feet away from existing similar businesses, but is close enough to Head Lake park to be a success.

Another proposal for a chip truck, this one by Carol Stamp who wanted to put one in front of Hair Emporium for the Rotary Carnival, was turned down. The current bylaw only allows for annual licenses and sites and not for specific events said clerk Donna McCallum. The chip wagon would also be within 500 feet of the Old Country House Restaurant and Mingles Restaurant. Councillor Laurie Bonfield said the wagon might also conflict with Rotary food sellers.

Numbers game

Greg Bishop of the Haliburton Rotary Club wants more council input into the numbering of Haliburton's residences and businesses. Bishop said the task is much larger than first anticipated and rather than coming in with a cold proposal that may be turned down, he would like to see council actively participate in the process. One of the key problems is determining where the town's boundaries actually start and end. The other main problem is how the numbering should be done, whether starting at 1 or some other number.

A committee with councillors Brian Watts, Gerry Walker and Laurie Bonfield was formed to help Rotary. Minden has had a voluntary numbering system in place since last spring, but it has been somewhat less than successful. Numbering properties allows emergency crews and couriers quicker access.

As a token of appreciation for the Rotary Club's efforts towards the realization of the Minden Community Centre expansion, Minden's Cubs and Scouts presented the club with a photo collage of Scouting activities. The Cubs and Scouts use a portion of the addition as their regular meeting place. Scouting leader Ron MacKenzie made the presentation to Tara Lowes during the annual banquet last week.

Proposal would have safety certificates issued to boaters boating safety courses. Anyone with enough money to buy a boat can operate one and there are no age limits for drivers.

McLean wants his bill sent to a Standing Committee of the Legislature so that public hearings and amendments can be made before the bill is brought to the legislature again. A similar attempt to bring the bill before the public was defeated last year.

There are two major changes to the bill from previous years. The first is that a license will not have to be obtained to drive a motor boat.

However, an operator's certificate stating the driver has completed a mandatory education and safety course will be required. The certificate will be required for anyone driving a water vessel of at least 10 horsepower, to take into account jet skis, as opposed to 25 horsepower in earlier bills.

The maximum fine for disobeying either law remains at $1,000.

Dysart cutbacks

* A public meeting to discuss how Dysart could proceed with the $3 million sewage expansion has been set for July 9 in the arena between 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. A further meeting will happen in August after council has set its course.

* The Ministry of Transportation has pulled funding for some forms of roadside maintenance unless it is safety related, but Dysart residents should see little change. Most of the work done on Dysart's provincial highways is safety related even though it is things like cutting grass and brush removal. However, debris pick-up will not be covered.

* The province has cut back municipality's grants again. Normally at this time the province gives municipalities 25 per cent of its grant money, however it is only giving Dysart 10 per cent or $37,400 rather than the full amount of $93,500.

One of Minden's most famous artistic exports: Andre Lapine

New show highlights artist who remains unknown to many

by Andy Holloway

Just who is this Andre Lapine fellow anyway and why does his work always seem to be on display at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery?

That question may be on a lot of lips when they see the posters advertising the most recent show of Lapine's work at the gallery. Far from being an imported talent to the area, Lapine spent many of his later years in the Minden area before and after his wife died. In fact Lapine and his wife are both buried in the Minden Cemetery - Lapine having died in 1952 at the age of 84, 11 years after his wife.

Gallery Administrator Ruth Amos says Lapine was one of the most well-known Canadian painters, but outside of the famed Group of Seven very few Canadian painters ever gained widespread acclaim for their work. Amos says she thinks very highly of Lapine's work and some of it even hangs in her office at the gallery.

Gallery committee member and artist Claudio Mestroni says Lapine was a genius and that it's too bad more people can't see his work because then he would get the respect and recognition he deserves.

Both Mestroni and Amos said they have been frustrated in attempts to give Lapine's work a wider audience. Mestroni says the gallery is trying to create a touring show, but needs more money to buy proper moving crates while Amos says they tried to get the township of Minden to hang his work in the municipal office, a request that was denied.

Born in 1868 in Shujen, Latvia, Lapine spent several years learning in several European countries before marrying and coming to Canada in 1907. A year later, after trying his hand at farming out west, Lapine moved to the Toronto area. His work was reproduced in magazines like Canadian Magazine and Saturday Night. Lapine is also represented at the National Gallery, the Art Gallery of Ontario as well as a couple of other major galleries.

Like many artists, Lapine had his misfortunes.

Andre Lapine's work almost became the property of Haliburton Village after the death of Frank Welch.

Twice he narrowly escaped death as a result of serious accidents. In 1934 he was struck by an automobile and five years later nearly died in a farming accident at his South Lake farm.

After his wife died at his neighbors', the Hamiltons home, Lapine moved in with his good friend Frank Welch. This house became his permanent house until his death. When Welch died he left Lapine's paintings to the people of Minden with the condition that a permanent home be found for them. If Minden did not cooperate, the paintings would have gone to Haliburton Village. Fortunately, Minden residents, in particular Dr. Agnes Jamieson and politicians, came through and an art gallery was built. The gallery was named after Jamieson for her work in

IMPROVING YOUR VIEW SINCE 1983

A healthy appreciation

Two local organizations were honoured for their work during the influenza surveillance season last Thursday at the Minden Hospital. Medical Officer of Health Alex Hukowich of the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit presented Sandy Hartwick, representing Ontario Hydro, and Bev Pettes, representing Hyland Crest Seniors Home, with certificates of appreciation.

First hole in one at Blairhampton

The first hole-in-one of the season at Blairhampton Golf Course occurred June 11 when Isobel Carscallen shot an ace on the eighth hole. Carscallen used a five wood on the 163 yard, par three hole. The event was witnessed by Carscallen's husband Doug.

getting it established.

Much of Lapine's work was focussed on the Highlands and its well-known beauty, however, some of the paintings could be of any picturesque rural area, which is part his charm. Scenes which seem so familiar, but without a place name attached to them, are also as fresh as if first seen.

A Toronto Star review of Lapine's one man show in 1944 describes his work well: "Andre's current show is a revel in the luminous pageantry of nature: red foxes at play in a Haliburton forest; colonnades of gray larches etched against splashes of cloud-colors; a sandy high-road among rich blazes of maple foliage; a Whistleresque gray-poplar gleam of ice-cutters..."

Lapine's beautiful and well brought-out water-colours seem to inspire such flowery language from critics and patrons alike.

Celebrating Canada

by Andy Holloway

Anyone who complains there isn't enough to do next week in Minden either isn't looking very hard or just likes to complain.

Three major events are coming to the area, promising a little something for everyone, as various organizers gear up for a week of Canada Day celebrations.

The newest event is, of course, the Canada Country Bash being put on by Mattsson's Country Club in Carnarvon. Several bands including Celtic-influenced The Rankin Family will be performing during the day-long event on July 3.

The Rankins are the "hottest country act" in Canada right now according to both organizer John Mattsson and Bill Anderson of Country 59, co-presenters of the event.

This is the first year for the event and the fact that it features only Canadian artists is a fairly rare event in Canadian country music circles. While the headliners are from out of town there is a local element as well as Rick Jones' family is from the Haliburton area and long time area favourite Lou Moore has been added to the bill. As well, Larry and Laura Mattsson (Dad and sister of John) will also be performing.

Tickets cost $15 and are available at Ticket Master as well as at Mattsson's, Nashville North, Rattlin' Creek in Haliburton, Sears in Minden and Hutley's in Huntsville.

Entering its second year of being organized by Lisa Connelly, the Canada Day Celebration really is offering a

There's plenty of food, displays, contests, activities and performances with a wide range of things to do in each of those categories. Kids should get a kick out of being involved in the Trike Pull event while everyone, judging from last year's reaction, will enjoy meeting RCMP Constable Carol Clarke.

A difference this year is the fact that much of the proceeds will be going towards the Minden Hospital Building Fund to help make sure Minden always has a hospital.

Club 35 from Hall's Lake and Rudy's in Carnarvon are getting involved, making it not just a Minden event, but one involving nearly the entire eastern portion of the county.

But the best part is...nearly everything is completely FREE.

Finally, the dependable Highlands Artisan's Festival is entering its third year and will be at the Minden Community Centre on July 3 and 4.

This year, the festival is featuring over 100 artists from around this area, as well as a few from outside the area. Last year, there were 68 exhibits and in its first year just 45 so the event is growing rapidly in popularity.

The festival will occupy both floors of the Community Centre and will feature several new exhibits as well as some you may have seen before. Whether you want to purchase some of the fine work available or browse, the festival offers a wide variety of the work being done by today's artists.

Donations are welcome and refreshments will be available.

Enjoy Canada's birthday!

Country concert bash coming to county town

by Andy Holloway

What if you got some of the hottest names in Canadian country music together, packaged them into one full day of music and fun and then brought the whole gang to Minden. Sound impossible?

Well, it's happening on July 3 up at the Minden Fairgrounds, under the banner of Canada's Country Birthday Bash.

Organizing the bash is John Mattsson, owner of Mattsson's Country Club. All the acts are Canadian and Mattsson says all of the bands are highly respected in country music circles and none of them are mediocre.

The Rankin Family are the headlining act on a bill which includes Don Neilson, Eddie Eastman, Larry and Laura Mattsson, Johnny Burke, Harold MacIntyre and two local acts - Rick Jones and Lou Moore.

The unique aspect of the show is the fact that all of the acts are Canadian, which is not really done too often for festival audiences.

"There's some shows at the exhibition and places like that, but there's not really a full fun day with all-Canadian acts," says Mattsson.

"Some people might say it's a gamble having only Canadian acts, but it's only a gamble because there's not enough publicity surrounding these bands. Canadians often feel second-rate to the American bands and some of them are, but many are just as good."

An example of how good Canadian acts can be is the Rankin Family, who are the top selling act in the country and one of the most popular says Country 59's Bill Anderson. Country 59 is involved in promoting two shows next week, the Minden bash and one in North York on July 1 featuring George Fox and Colleen Patterson, two of Canada's top country names. However, it has to be seen as a coup for Minden to have the newest country sensation, the Rankin Family on its lineup.

"The Rankin Family is the hottest recording act in Canada right now, even more so than George Fox. From the perspective of this radio station each event has equal importance because each serves a different audience, but the crowd in Minden should probably be similar in size to the one in North York."

Highlands Artisan's Festival enters third year

The Highlands Artisan's Festival makes a return to Minden for its third annual showing and it will be bigger than ever say its organizers.

Over 100 of the area's most accomplished painters, weavers, wood-workers, knitters, potters and other artists will be displaying their wares at the Community Centre. This year both levels of the centre are being used to accommodate the number of artists expected to attend. Last year, the arena was used for the main exhibitors and at times it was crowded as nearly 1,500 people came to view 60 exhibitor's works.

In its first year, the festival featured 45 Haliburton County artists and celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Agnes Jamieson Gallery. About 1,000 people showed up. In its second year and again this year, the festival has expanded outside the county to attract a wider variety of artists and hence appeal to a wider range of people.

Some of the local artists expected to appear include potter Graham Wales, Mary Hincks, Shirley Kuni and Ed Araquel whose studio near Lake Kashagawigamog is open to the public.

Once again the show will feature demonstrations by some of the artists and will feature exhibits by both the County Town Museum and the Horticultural Society.

A couple of new things will also be happening. There is a writer's corner where several authors who have written about the area will be showcasing their books. And the Community Art Show will feature artists in the community of all ages, not just seniors, as was the case last year.

The festival is on July 3 between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. and on July 4 between noon and 5 p.m. Parking and admission are free, but donations are welcomed.

Minden's All-Canadian country festival should be a winner

Once a Celtic folk band, the Cape Breton based Rankins have moved over to a crossover audience appeal. Anderson says the past two years have seen the band shift to a more mainstream sound and hence, much more airplay and success.

Most of the other acts like Eddie Eastman have records out and have had some degree of success. Eastman was more successful in the late 1970s and early 1980s, but still gets airplay says Anderson. His most famous song might be "Eastbound 401". Eastman once won the Juno for male country artist of the year. Jonny Burke was also a big act through the '70s while Harold MacIntyre was big through the '80s.

Don Neilson is a rising country act whose first record was recently released and if you don't recognize the name you will recognize the voice as he has sung on several commercials for companies like Molson and Esso.

Laura Mattsson is also a rising star and has released one album along with four singles, including a duet with her father Larry Mattsson who was Canada's top new country artist in 1978 and has had 12 singles released.

The organizers have also put Rick Jones whose family is from Haliburton on the bill as well as local favourite Lou Moore. Jones is currently looking to release his first album.

If the event is successful, John Mattsson says it will become an annual one with a permanent stage at the Fairgrounds. For this year, they are testing audience reaction to see whether or not to continue.

Mattsson says people coming to the show should bring a lawn chair and a blanket, but leave the booze behind. While there will be a beer garden as well as food stands, spectators are not allowed to bring in their own booze. Cameras, however, are welcome unlike other major shows in the Toronto area.

There will also be a booth selling the musicians records, shirts and other paraphernalia.

The event may not actually be on Canada Day, but Mattsson says that shouldn't stop people from celebrating our birthday rain or shine.

"Come on Canada, let's get out and support Canadian acts," says Mattsson.

Canada birthday bash grows bigger with volunteer participation

by Andy Holloway

Canada Day Mission: "To create for a day, an open amusement park. And admission is free."

Sound easy? Well it's not.

It takes a lot of volunteers to plan, set up and execute one day's worth of activities. Fortunately, Canada Day organizer Lisa Connelly has many people on side for this year's festivities on July 1.

Organizers build on tremendous success of Canada 125 celebration

Connelly says the support she has received from local service groups, the municipality and the Business Improvement Area has been tremendous. As well she has received healthy support from individuals and businesses outside the BIA who saw the success of last year's Canada's 125th Birthday Party, Connelly's first as an organizer, and wanted to help out this year. Connelly also singles out Carol Miles for her work without which "this wouldn't be achieved."

The number of workers should help the Canada Day Committee to top last year's birthday bash held in Minden. The party was, as anyone who attended can attest, a great success and will be hard to follow. However, Connelly says she hopes that people will remember the fun they had coming together and not just that it was a milestone.

"We hope it wasn't just because it was Canada's 125th birthday that they came, but because it was a free mini-amusement park."

One of the key differences this year is that most organizations and individuals involved who are charging money for their wares or services will be donating a part of the proceeds to the Minden Hospital Building Fund, a good cause, and people will know their money is being used to help their community as well.

This year's celebration also has more events, more people and more entertainment lined up than last year. One of the new events is a fashion show, featuring western clothing, put on by Nashville North. The store will also be sponsoring a line dancing demonstration as well. Other businesses joining in are Kountry Double D with a Summer Smorgasbord ($12 for adults, $6 for children 12 and under) and Campbell's Flowers and Garden Centre which is creating red and white paper roses.

Another new event is the River Parade, with the boats starting to cruise down the Gull at 11 a.m.

There is also an antique car display put on by the Haliburton Chapter of the Historic Automobile Society of Canada, a "foot rally" where rhymes and riddles will have to be solved as well as walking, a Trike Pull (similar to a truck pull, but for kids 10 and under) and a booth set up by the Red Cross/Royal Life Saving Society.

"Living in an area surrounded by lakes, Sheila Thomson and the display are a great asset to our day," says Connelly.

Even the federal government got involved donating ribbons, flags (as did the Legion) and pins. The Legion will also dedicate the new flag pole at the Community Centre at 9 p.m.

While the event is separate from others during the year, Connelly says it fits into the overall scheme of drawing more people to the area.

"Tourism is our, major foremost industry. We want people to think of Minden and know that something will be happening at different points of the calendar."

For a complete listing of events check out the Canada Day poster that is hanging in most area shops and in municipal buildings. And if you want to help out in any way, give Lisa Connelly a call at 286-1225.

Women's Institute enjoy pot luck luncheon at the United Church

Sixteen members of Minden Women's Institute and two guests enjoyed a pot luck luncheon at the United Church hall on Wednesday, June 16. President Jean Lacey welcomed everyone especially our one new member, Beulah Hewitt.

Opening was conducted after we had partaken of the buffet and had a good chat with friends.

Irene Moore reported sending 13 cards on a variety of occasions since our last meeting and collections for the Hall, Card Fund and Pennies for Friendship were taken.

Several committees were formed, Fair Exhibit Jean Cox and Jeanne Sears and the Phone Committee Bette Herlihey and Beulah Hewitt. A reminder that our Bake Sales are Friday, July 2 and August 6 and donations are needed for the food basket to be drawn at the September meeting, tickets will be on sale until then.

We plan to have a Tweedsmuir Tea on Saturday, September 11 in the afternoon. Thanks to Jeanne Simpson we received new programmes and also our Home and Country magazine. Items were promised for the fair exhibit.

Victoria East District President, Eleanor Crane was present at this meeting and spoke to us on the Annual, Area Office and the Big Bucks Euchre Party to be held at Burnt River Centre later this year.

Jean Lacey thanked everyone for coming and hoped all would have a great summer.

Break-in arrests

Four people have been charged in connection with three break-ins on Gull Lake. Daniel Kirk Sharp, 18, of no fixed address, Colin Adair Taylor, 18, of Minden, Brent Stirling Cook, 20, of Bowmanville and a young offender whose name can not be released were charged with break and enter and possession of stolen property. The young offender has not had a court date set yet, but the other three will appear in Minden court on July 7.

Glamorgan break-in Five young offenders have been charged in connection with a break-in of the municipal offices in Gooderham. About $1,200 worth of damage was caused during the break-in of the Glamorgan Municipal Office overnight on June 10.

Disturbance

A Nestleton area man has been charged with causing a disturbance after he was found by police yelling and using obscene and insulting language on Main Street in Haliburton on June 11. William Steven Clement, 37, was scheduled to appear in Minden provincial court June 16.

Seat Belts

Police in this area have found that motorists are not buckling up their seat belts. Stop checks set up in the villages of Haliburton and Minden resulted in 31 charges being laid last Sunday. The penalty for not wearing a seat belt is $90.

Little Caesar set to rock Haliburton

The roof may come off the Dysart arena when Canadian old-time rockers The Original Little Caesar and the Consuls come to the village on Saturday, July 3.

The concert is a benefit for the Lindsay and Area Crime Stoppers and is the first major fund raising effort in Haliburton County.

Little Caesar formed in 1956 and played together for over 20 years, becoming a force on the Canadian music scene at the time. One song, My Girl Sloopy, went to number one on the pop music charts and brought the group some international attention.

The band will be in tip-top shape even if their fans may be a little weak kneed and out of tune.

Tickets are now on sale at Westside Jug City in Haliburton and Minden and Agnew's Red and White Store in Wilberforce for $15 a person.

Your support will help Crime Stoppers in their battle against crime in this area.

Crafty seniors reveal their hidden talents

Except for a few visitors coming in and a few residents going out the weekend was pretty quiet. June 6th was my birthday (Happy Belated Birthday Winnifred! - The Times staff). My grandson Rick has bought a cottage on Little Redstone and I had not seen it, so Terry took me to see it and Terry, Norma, Sue, Rick and I had a birthday dinner at the cottage.

Sunday Estella Burch continued the reading and Reverend John Burgess conducted the Sunday evening chapel service with June Moore playing the organ.

Monday we had a bus trip to the IGA store. The residents appear to enjoy doing this, looking around whether they buy or not. We had a new bus driver with Doris making sure all went well.

Pastor Fast held the Tuesday morning chapel service. Your faithfulness and guidance is greatly appreciated.

In the afternoon we had a discussion in the auditorium on what and how crafts were done back in 1920 or so. We found we have some talents we were unaware of among our residents. This makes for a far better activities group, getting everyone to try out their skills they had forgotten they had.

That evening, we had a few card games with Corinne Arsenault guiding hands. Thanks Corinne.

Wednesday we had planned a picnic to Panorama Park, but the weather didn't cooperate so we had a discussion of crafts during our lives. We used to do most crafts by hand sewing and used all small pieces left from other things we had made. It was interesting to see how and what we had done changed through the years.

Since Earl Cooper was on vacation we had Kathleen Owens and Don White provide the entertainment for Wednesday evening. Thank you both, we enjoyed your music very much.

On June 10, our Thursday tea party was combined with a resident volunteer appreciation tea. The ladies of Lochlin provided the delicious lunch for the tea, and they were Shirley Hill, Mildred Hill, Lois Peters, Helen Donaldson, Marg Endicott, Marion Miniker and Calken Newson. John Menzies played the piano before and after the tea. During the tea, administrator Rheta Jones presented six residents with gifts for the volunteer work they had done during the year. Lillian Harrison,

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Jean Taylor, Alice Todd, Nora Groves, Winnifred Barnum and Reginald Booth were honoured. There was a beautiful cake adorning the centre of their table. After the presentation, Jock Mavor and his omnichord sang some old favourites in his beautiful voice. Needless to say, the residents of Hyland Crest truly thank everyone who provided this happy afternoon.

In the evening, Kathy Woods called bingo in the dining room for the residents who wished to play.

Thank you Kathy.

Many happy returns on your June 11th birthday Lola Prentice.

Happy Hour was held on Friday with entertainment by Charlie Hadley and Carmen with Doris at the piano. Thank you Charlie and Carmen, we appreciate your music very much. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden, Pearl Cowen and Mary Guillemin. We certainly are very thankful for your assistance.

The residents of Hyland Crest are in need of volunteer drivers to take them to medical appointments, both locally and out of town. If there is anyone who might have some time available we would appreciate it very much. Please contact Linda Fry, the Adjuvant at 286-2140.

Root of tree problem lies in the roots

The recognition that seeds could be cultivated for human use was a monumental breakthrough that made civilization as we know it possible.

Beginning more than 10,000 years ago with tiny patches of cleared land, early farmers began to accumulate knowledge through trial and error, disasters and bumper harvests. Pre-scientific farmers acquired the sophistication to develop virtually all of the domesticated animals and plants in use today.

The agricultural revolution altered large parts of the Earth's surface. Even now, we're learning new lessons about the ecological costs of modern agriculture and its inventory of pesticides, herbicides, chemical fertilizers and monocultures.

Today, working with trees that may take hundreds of years to mature, forest companies have begun to use the ideas and jargon of agriculture. Trees are "harvested" as "crops" while chemical biocides and fertilizers are applied extensively.

To some people, a forest is just a population of trees. After an ancient forest is leveled, foresters call their deliberately planted replacements a "normal" forest. But to others (including me) a forest encompasses the soil, water, air, wildlife, microorganisms, small plants and trees. Their components, interaction and interdependence are little understood by scientists. What we do know is that a dynamic, productive, intact forest is able to absorb such catastrophes as wind, flood, drought and pests.

But old-growth forests are falling with frightening speed before the onslaught of humanity and technology. Forestry experts tell us we know enough to regrow the likes of the old-growth trees that still make up most of the trees cut in Canada.

Even though a tree plantation is not a forest, when young trees are planted after clear cutting, the land is said to be reforested. Forest companies admit they have not "managed" forests sustainably in the past, but point to the fact that now two or three trees are being planted for every one cut.

That simply means young trees were placed into the ground, but does not indicate how many survive and grow. As I pointed out last week, a community of trees that are hundreds of years old can not be equated with a young tree plantation.

When the trees are gone, the soil is exposed to erosive rain, baking sun and drying winds. The trees planted are usually only one or two commercially useful species that have been genetically selected for rapid growth and wood quality.

But studies in a lab or field plot are seldom applicable in the wild. A disturbing report about planted trees

Reflections

by David Suzuki

ought to make foresters re-examine their bold claims about managed plantations. Reese Halter, under the direction of C.P. Channing at the University of British Columbia, showed that the roots of planted trees differ significantly from roots in naturally growing trees (Forest Ecology and Management, 56:131-146).

A naturally growing lodgepole pine will send a main root down into the soil. Within five centimetres, three to five lateral roots grow sideways to stabilize the tree. From the lateral roots, "sinker" roots grow as well as an elaborate network of fine feeding rootlets.

Trees for planting are grown for a year in containers which restrict the growth of lateral roots. Are the roots of these trees, like the deformities resulting from binding the feet of young girls in China, affected by the containers?

Halter compared the root systems of container-grown Douglas fir and lodgepole pines 11 years after planting with those in naturally grown trees of the same age. The findings are dramatic and disturbing. Like a bound foot, the roots of container-grown trees are deformed with far fewer developed sinker roots and rootlets.

In addition, shoot growth is significantly reduced in the container-grown trees. This simple observation should be cause for great concern for those who confidently maintain that forests are being maintained.

The productivity of Canada's great forests are a result of natural forces acting over long periods of time. In "liquidating" these end-products of evolution we are destroying a baseline against which to compare our managed plantations and the diversity from which to learn what keeps forests healthy.

History informs us that we should be wary of the conceit that we know enough to improve on the productivity of nature.

Trent-Severn report

The effects of heavier than average rain at the end of May lingered into June. On June 7 the Haliburton reservoirs averaged 99.3 per cent compared to the average of about 96 per cent for this time of year in the 1970s. The surplus was diminishing over the week ending June 12, despite a few more showers and thunderstorms.

The Kawartha Lakes gradually diminished over the week as well, with a fairly large flow of about 120 cubic metres per second running down the Otonabee River. By June 11 it was possible to reduce this to 90 cubic metres per second without causing a rise in lake levels.

1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The consolidated financial statements of the Corporation (municipality) are the representation of management prepared in accordance with accounting policies prescribed for Ontario municipalities by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. Since precise determination of many assets and liabilities is dependent upon future events, the preparation of periodic financial statements necessarily involves the use of estimates and approximations. These have been made using careful judgments.

(i) Basis of Consolidation

These consolidated statements reflect the assets, liabilities, sources of financing and expenditures of the revenue fund, capital fund, reserve funds and reserves and include the activities of all committees of Council and the following boards, municipal enterprises and utilities which are under the control of Council:

Minden Waterworks System
Minden Sewage System
Minden Business Improvement Area
Minden Cemetery Board
Haliburton County Ambulance Service

All interfund assets and liabilities and sources of financing and expenditures have been eliminated with the exception of loans or advances between reserve funds and any other fund of the municipality and the resulting interest income and expenditures.

(ii) Non-Consolidated Entities

There are no non-consolidated entities.

(iii) Accounting for County and School Board Transactions

The taxation, other revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities with respect to the operations of the school board and the County of Haliburton are not reflected in the municipal fund balances of these financial statements. Overlevies (underlevies) are reported on the Consolidated Balance Sheet as "other current liabilities" ("other current assets").

The above data has been extracted from the audited Consolidated Financial Report of the Townships and the local boards as described in Note 1. Copies of the Consolidated Financial Report and the Report of our Auditor, Mr. Gary L. Thurston, Chartered Accountant, are available at the Townships' Offices to any resident who wishes to review or analyze the financial operations of the Townships in greater detail.

MINISTRY OF NATURAL RESOURCES

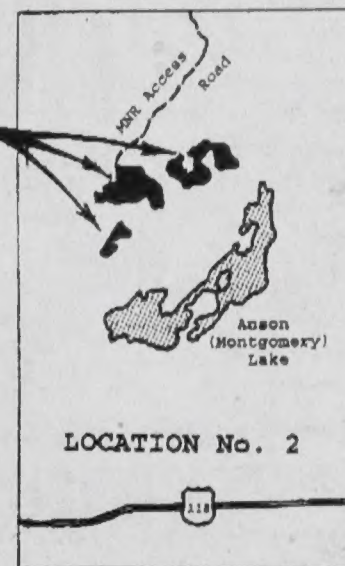

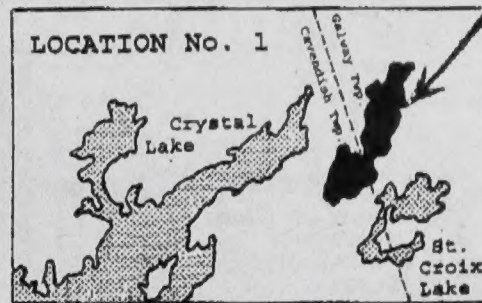

Public Notice of a Prescribed Burn

Between mid-June and mid-August, the Ministry of Natural Resources will be conducting two prescribed burns in this area for reforestation purposes. The first of these is 15 km southeast of Kinmount, about one kilometre northeast of Crystal Lake along the Galway-Cavendish township line. The second is located 15 km west of Camarvon, about one kilometre north of Anson Lake (also known as Montgomery Lake) in Hindon Township. The exact date of these burns will depend on suitable weather conditions and any northern fire-fighting assignments for the Haliburton Fire Centre's crews. The most probable date for the burns is during the last two weeks of July.

If you observe smoke or helicopter activity in the area of these prescribed burns during this period, please do not drive to them for a closer look. Access to the burn sites will be closed, and curious on-lookers will only block traffic and impede the movements of MNR fire crew. You will be welcome to view the site after the fire has been extinguished.

The purpose of these prescribed burns is to prepare two recently logged areas for the planting of 192,000 white pine, hemlock and spruce in the spring of 1994. For more information on this prescribed burn or on other forestry activities in this area, please contact Peter Hynard of the MNR Minden Office at (705) 286-1521. For information on the day of the burn, call the Haliburton Fire Centre at (705) 457-2107.
